PRAYER

FROM THE DESK OF OUR PASTORAL ADMINISTRATOR

Fr. Emerson Rodriguez Delgado

Imagine standing before a narrow door, slightly open. Beyond it lies the deepest longings of your heart: unshakable peace, boundless joy, and an eternal relationship with the God who knows and loves you completely. But here's the question: will you step through now, or will fear, hesitation, or pride hold you back until the door closes?

St. Augustine captures the urgency perfectly: "God has promised forgiveness to your repentance, but He has not promised tomorrow to your procrastination." How often we dream of change, talk about transformation, and pray for breakthrough, but when the time comes to act, we hold back. We tell ourselves, "I've got more time." But do you really? Tomorrow is not guaranteed, my friend.

This Sunday's Gospel from Luke brings this tension to the forefront. When someone asks Jesus, "Lord, will only a few be saved?" Perhaps the more pressing question for us today is: "Am I saved?" Instead of offering statistics, Jesus gives a vivid image: a narrow door. His reply is both a challenge and an invitation: "Strive to enter through it."

The word "strive" comes from the Greek agonizo, evoking effort, struggle, and even discipline—like an athlete pushing every boundary, straining toward the prize. This striving is not passive; it demands focus, action, and the courage to surrender everything for something far greater. But here's where we often stumble: mistaking striving as earning God's love. The truth is, salvation is a gift of grace, freely given, not something we can achieve by merit.

As the letter to the Hebrews reminds us in chapter 12, "The Lord disciplines those He loves"—not to punish, but to prepare us for the glory to come. Grace, when truly embraced, transforms us. It calls us to act, to surrender, to align our lives fully with God's will. Here lies the paradox: salvation is free, yet it demands everything from us.

This isn't a burden; it's freedom. Jesus' invitation to the narrow door challenges us to let go of the weights that hold us back—fear, pride, and sin—and step forward in trust. He warns, however, of the urgency: the door will not remain open forever. "Many will seek to enter and will not be able"—not because they weren't invited, but because they waited too long. The true tragedy is not exclusion but hesitation.

What's holding you back? Is it fear that you're not ready, not worthy, or not enough? Salvation isn't about simply being near Jesus or knowing His teachings. It's about a personal response to His call—a heart that says, "I trust You. I will follow You." Jesus underscores this with sobering clarity, describing those who knock too late, pleading, "Lord, open the door for us," only to hear the chilling reply: "I do not know where you are from." Even those who confident in their faith may find themselves strangers to Jesus at the final judgment. The ultimate heartbreak is hearing: "Depart from me, all you evildoers." knowing you had the chance but let it slip away. Don't let that be your story.

To walk through the narrow door is to embrace Jesus Himself, who said, "I am the door. If anyone enters through me, they will be saved." That's a promise, sealed in His blood and delivered by His resurrection power. All you need to do is step forward in faith.

Though this call to strive may seem daunting, it is filled with hope. Jesus assures us that people will come from the east and the west, the north and the south, to sit at God's table. Salvation is open to all—regardless of past mistakes, backgrounds, or failures. The Church reminds us of God's infinite mercy. The Second Vatican Council teaches that even those who do not explicitly know Christ but sincerely seek truth and strive to follow God's will may share in His salvation (Lumen Gentium 16). God's mercy surpasses our understanding. Yet, even boundless mercy calls us to strive—to live with love, humility, and faithfulness.

So, the question isn't, "Will only a few be saved?" The real question is, "Will I choose to walk through the door?" No matter how far you've wandered, how heavy your burdens feel, or how many times you've fallen, God's love remains constant, ready to welcome you home. You are never too far from His grace.

The door is open—now. Not tomorrow, not when you feel ready. Now. Let go of fear, excuses, and shame. Step forward in faith. The moment is here.

Will you walk through?

PRAY FOR OUR MILITARY

The men and women who serve in the armed forces do so with a sacrificial love for our country and the world. Lifting them up in prayer to our Lord must be our humble, and yet great support for them.

Lord, may your love encircle our military as they work across the world to install justice and peace for all. And be their hope through the difficulties and stress they face each day.
