It is a wonderful Catholic tradition to request a Mass Intention for loved ones; living or deceased. In fact, asking for Mass intention for the deceased is not only Catholic tradition, it is biblical (2 Maccabees 12: 38-46).

Mass intention is also a wonderful gift for any special occasion: birthday, anniversary, in thanksgiving for a prayer answered, etc. Mass intention donations are $10 each. Please call the parish office to schedule a Mass Intention.

PRAYER

FROM THE DESK OF OUR PASTORAL ADMINISTRATOR

Fr. Emerson Rodriguez Delgado

Where do we search for God? Let's start with a striking thought from Johann Tauler: "We must go into our house, our souls..." That's where we search for God—ironically, it's also where God searches for us. But don't expect some serene, candlelit moment of quiet reflection. The search is messy. Tauler paints a vivid picture of God "ransacking the house," tossing things aside, determined to find us. It's uncomfortable, even unsettling, but then again, real transformation rarely comes easy.

While churches and rituals hold value, they serve as signposts, not the ultimate destination. The true dwelling place of God? It's within us. Faith, after all, isn't about comfort. It's not cheap or effortless. Yes, it's a free gift from God, but it's one we must wrestle with to claim as our own. And here's the beauty of it: God isn't searching for some Instagram-filtered, polished version of us. (Spoiler alert: that version doesn't exist.) Instead, God meets us in the mess—our chaos, our raw and unpolished selves. That mutual search, that divine game of hide-and-seek, lies at the very heart of faith.

Now, let's turn to this Sunday's Gospel. Jesus enters the Temple, stepping into the Court of the Gentiles, and what does He find? A bustling marketplace. Merchants sell animals, money changers profit from pilgrims—it's chaos and exploitation in a space meant for prayer. In an unforgettable moment of righteous anger, Jesus flips tables and drives them out. But His outrage isn't just about the marketplace. He's calling out something much deeper.

Jesus warns that religion can become too comfortable—too focused on appearances, empty rituals, or even power. When that happens, it loses its soul. True worship isn't about checking boxes or performing outward piety. It's about an authentic encounter with God—one that unsettles us, changes us, and, through us, transforms the world.

And here's where it gets personal. Saint Paul reminds us, "You are the temple of God." Let that sink in: you, me, every single one of us—we are living, breathing temples of the Holy Spirit. God isn't confined to a building or some far-off heaven. He's right here, dwelling within us. But just like the Temple in today's Gospel, our hearts can become cluttered. So, what's cluttering yours? What distractions, habits, or attitudes are taking up space that belongs to God?

Materialism? Selfishness? Division? An obsession with comfort? These are the modern-day money changers of our hearts, pushing God to the edges. This Sunday's liturgy invites us to flip the tables in our own lives—clearing out the clutter and making room for God again. It's not easy, but it's worth every ounce of effort.

Here's the deeper truth: Jesus redefines what the Temple is. In the Gospel, He declares that His body is the true Temple—the meeting place of God and humanity. Through His death and resurrection, Jesus opens the door for us to become living temples of the Holy Spirit. It's a radical idea. It's an incredible gift, but also a serious responsibility.

So, what does that mean for us? As God's living temples, we're called to carry His presence to others. Our lives should reflect His love, mercy, and justice. But here's the catch: we can't give what we don't have. Before we can bring God's light to others, we need to let Him into the messy, broken, and cluttered parts of our own hearts. Only then can real transformation happen—in us and through us.

When we gather around the Eucharist, we're reminded of this sacred calling. The body and blood of Christ unite us and send us into the world as His hands and feet. We're commissioned to bring His love, service, and hope to everyone we meet—especially the poor, the vulnerable, and those most in need.

So, as we leave this place today, let's live what we've received. Let's clear the clutter, embrace our identity as living temples of the Holy Spirit, and carry God's love into a world starving for it. Because when you strip it all down, faith isn't about staying comfortable—it's about being transformed. And through that transformation, we can begin to transform the world.

PRAY FOR OUR MILITARY

The men and women who serve in the armed forces do so with a sacrificial love for our country and the world. Lifting them up in prayer to our Lord must be our humble, and yet great support for them.

Lord, may your love encircle our military as they work across the world to install justice and peace for all. And be their hope through the difficulties and stress they face each day.
