It is a wonderful Catholic tradition to request a Mass Intention for loved ones; living or deceased. In fact, asking for Mass intention for the deceased is not only Catholic tradition, it is biblical (2 Maccabees 12: 38-46).

Mass intention is also a wonderful gift for any special occasion: birthday, anniversary, in thanksgiving for a prayer answered, etc. Mass intention donations are $10 each. Please call the parish office to schedule a Mass Intention.

A Revolution of Tenderness

This Sunday, the Gospel of John presents a story that is both profound and challenging, woven through two striking and evocative images: Jesus as the “Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world” and the Spirit descending like a dove and remaining on Him. At first glance, these symbols—the lamb and the dove—might seem soft and comforting, perfect for stained glass windows. Yet, a closer look reveals their bold, disruptive, and revolutionary nature.

We live in a culture that prizes strength, dominance, and control. We see it in how we argue, how we compete, how we protect our image, how we “win” online, at work, even at home. John’s Gospel, however, confronts this narrative with a startling paradox. God’s power is not about domination or force. Instead, it is revealed in lamb-like vulnerability and dove-like gentleness. That’s right—God’s strength shows up in the most unexpected places: weakness, loss, and yes, even a cross.

The image of the “lamb” may evoke fragility or innocence, but for John the Baptist and for the Jewish imagination, it was rich with meaning: in the story of Abraham and Isaac, the lamb symbolized God’s provision—a substitute sacrifice sparing Isaac’s life. At Passover, the lamb’s blood marked freedom from slavery and protection from death, pointing to an even greater exodus to come. In the Temple, lambs were sacrificed daily, a reminder of humanity’s need for forgiveness, mercy, restoration. And in Isaiah, the Suffering Servant is like a lamb, silent and innocent, bearing the guilt of others.

So when John the Baptist proclaims, “Behold the Lamb of God,” he makes an audacious claim: Jesus is the ultimate sacrifice. Jesus is God’s decisive answer to sin and brokenness. He is the one who deals with sin at the root. This Lamb redefines power—not as control, but as self-giving love that liberates.

Similarly, the dove descending and remaining on Jesus is far more than a serene image. For the Jewish people, it’s carried deep symbolism of creation and new creation. In Genesis, the Spirit of God “hovered” over the chaotic waters, ready to bring order, life, and beauty. In Noah’s story, the dove returned with an olive branch, signaling peace, hope, and a new beginning after judgment and flood.

So when the Spirit descends on Jesus like a dove, it signifies a new creation, a moment of transformation. John’s Gospel highlights two pivotal moments involving the Spirit: At the beginning (1:32-33), the Spirit descends and remains on Jesus, identifying Him as the one in whom God’s presence truly dwells, the living meeting-place between God and humanity. At the end (Jn 20:22), the risen Jesus breathes the Spirit onto His disciples, commissioning them to carry God’s life to the world.

This progression is stunning: Jesus begins as the Spirit-bearer and becomes the Spirit-giver. The Lamb who takes away sin not only forgives; He also fills His followers with God’s very life – eternal life, starting now.

If this is who Jesus is – Lamb and Dove – then the question isn’t whether God is powerful. The question is: what kind of power will I trust? Do I trust the world’s version of dominance and control, or the vulnerable, faithful, self-giving love of the Lamb? Do I think of sin as isolated mistakes, or as a deeper pattern that shapes my heart, habits, relationships, even my culture? Do I believe Jesus carries not only the world’s brokenness but also my own – my shame, wounds, and guilt? Do I live as someone merely tolerated by God—or as a beloved child, being renewed by the Spirit?

This Sunday, let the words “Behold the Lamb of God” land personally. Jesus carries the weight of the world’s brokenness—and yours. When you come forward to receive Him in the Eucharist, pause. Take one quiet breath and pray, simply: “Lamb of God, take away my sin. Spirit of God, make me new.” Dare to believe that the Spirit still hovers over chaos—not to shame you, but to re-create you; not to crush you, but to whisper the truth: you are beloved.

Whatever you’ve been through, however far you feel you’ve wandered, this is what John is showing us: the Lamb cleanses, and the Dove re-creates. In Jesus, God offers not only forgiveness, but renewal—real change, real life, a true beginning again. Amen.

Celebration Lunch for Juliet Roy:

On Tuesday, January 20th, following the Communion Service, Mr. Roy will host a Celebration Lunch in remembrance of Juliet, marking one year since her passing. Please join us in this celebration of her life.
